(MORE)

Effective March 4, 2013, San Diego Superior Court began E-filing services in its Central Civil Division. Attorneys and the public are now be able to file documents with the Court without physically coming into the courthouse.

Documents may be filed electronically in non-mandated civil cases in the Central Division where either: (1) the case is first initiated on or after March 4, 2013; or (2) the case is already pending as of March 3, 2013 and has been imaged by the court.

Also beginning March 4, 2013, certain case types are now subject to mandatory E-filing, including civil class actions, some consolidated and coordinated actions, and actions that are provisionally complex under CRC 3.400-3.403 (as set forth in the Civil Cover Sheet, Judicial Council form CM-010 – but not including construction defect actions). “Complex cases” included in mandatory filing are as follows: Antitrust/Trade Regulation, Mass Tort, Environmental/Toxic Tort, and Securities Litigation cases, as well as insurance coverage claims arising from these case types. Construction defect cases, currently being filed through the LexisNexis website, will continue to be filed through that system until further notice.

The free training programs offered by the Superior Court and One Legal have been approved for MCLE credit.

Because of limited space, participants are urged to register early.
